Q2 Typically, accrediting bodies use the term “branch campus” to refer to a site which offers complete programs, has its own faculty, and has its own administrative and budgetary structure. Terms such as “additional location” are used for locations offering at least 50% of the courses in a program. Locations offering less than 50% of a program may be referred to as “other instructional sites.” In that light, which of the following terms best describes your location?
